

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

5.1 Conclusion

Based on the simple observation done during the experiment, some important findings can be concluded in the following experiments. Firstly, the making process of innovative doughnuts takes longer time than the conventional ones. Secondly the innovative products have different color and taste, the innovative products are soft and sweets than the conventional ones it can be concluded that the innovative products are more superior than the conventional ones in term of color and taste. The respondent say that innovative doughnuts has sweet taste and delicious doughnuts.

5.2 Suggestion

The writer suggests to the Pastry at the English Department to practicing in new innovation making of doughnuts with purple sweet potatoes the final report can help the student of English department.

However, next experiment should be done to find a better way of processing the product so that the process will be structure and then if will cut the coast of production.